

Buildings, Sites and Community Data:

The Alabama Site Selection Database and Community/County Profiles database located on www.edpa.org is provided in partnership with regional and local economic development organizations. Certain data are also obtained from third party sources. Although the information contained in this database has been provided by sources we believe to be reliable, the Economic Development Partnership of Alabama makes no representations or warranties, expressed or implied, as to the accuracy of the information. All information should be independently verified.

The database is a free service that is provided to promote economic growth in Alabama. The data on the database does not constitute an offer to sell or lease any property contained herein. The Economic Development Partnership is not a broker or agent for properties listed on the database and accepts no responsibility related to any transactions that may or may not be undertaken or contractual relationships that may or may not be entered into between third parties through or as a result of the profiles provided through our website.

Notes on geocoding and imagery:

On the Alabama Site Selection Database, the Economic Development Partnership of Alabama frequently locates properties geographically by the process of geocoding. This process is widely used and accepted in the field of GIS, but is an imperfect science. Because of this and human error, there may be buildings and sites on the database that are located incorrectly.
